CREAM OF NEWS.

IF IT IS NEW AND TRUE THIS COLUMN HAS IT.

Residence Burned - Child Burned - Fall Dead - First Ice - Railroad Sold - Big Warehouse - The Shoot - Court Cullings.

Residence Burned at Casky.
The handsome new dwelling house of Mr. Jno. L. Moseley, at Casky, built about a year ago at a cost of $9000, was burned at 3 p. m. Sunday, with much of its contents. All of the family excepting Dr. G. G. Moseley were away from home. Dr. Moseley and Joe Jackson were sitting in one of the front rooms reading when one of them happened to go out on the back porch for a drink of water and discovered the roof of the ell room, around the kitchen chimney to be in flames. No means of putting out the fire were at hand, and they could only save what they could of the contents. The neighbors soon gathered in and helped in this work and a good portion of the furniture was saved. Mr. Moseley estimates his loss at $3,500. The house was insured for $1,500, but there was no insurance on the contents.

Circuit Court Cullings.
Commonwealth cases claimed the attention of court last week and as a result the force at the pen will be considerably increased.

Griffy Ross, col., charged with feloniously breaking store house, was sentenced to 18 months.

Bob Tevis, col., malicious cutting, was convicted of cutting in sudden heat and passion, and given 12 months in the work house. Tevis cut a butcher at Gracey named Walpole, about a month ago.

Nathan Bowles, col., assault and battery, verdict of not guilty.

Chambers Stepp, col., charged with gaming, was released by his bondsman and committed to the jailer for safe keeping. He will be tried this week.

Two prisoners have already been sent to Eddyville and the four others convicted at this term will be taken off this week, and the remainder of court will then be taken up with civil matters.

How's This For Getting There?

As an instance of the phenomenal growth of the tobacco trade in this city, Messrs Gaither & West, in addition to the immense warehouse in which they do business at the corner of Ninth and Campbell streets, have just closed with Messrs Forbes & Bro. to erect for them the largest tobacco warehouse in the state outside of Louisville. It will be built on the lot opposite Ellis' ice factory, and will cover just half an acre of ground, and will be three full stories high. Two immense elevators which, when completed, will doubtless run by water power and used in hoisting and lowering the weed. Work commenced Saturday and the building will be completed July 15, '96.

A Railroad Sold.

The Paducah, Tennessee & Alabama railroad was sold at Paducah Friday to Judge J. W. Phillips, of St. Louis, by Special Commissioner J. R. Puryear, and A. B. Lamb, of Paris, Tennessee, for $1,000,000, $20,000 of which was paid in cash, the remainder to be paid hereafter as directed by the Federal court. The sale was made under order of the Federal court under foreclosure proceedings. It is presumed the road was bought in for the bondholders.

Jim Breathitt and Ollie James.

EDDYVILLE, Ky., Oct. 19.—Ollie M. James, of Marion, began his series of Democratic speeches in Western Kentucky at Eddyville this afternoon, and there was a big crowd to hear him. He challenged Mr. Breathitt, the Republican nominee for circuit judge, for a joint discussion at Eddyville to-night, but he declined to accept. Mr. Breathitt spoke at Kut-tawa to-day.

Fell Dead While Swimming.

Frank Mayer, a lad of 15 years, dropped dead at the High School in Henderson last Thursday. Mayer and several other boys were swinging from a rope during recess, when the unfortunate youth suddenly fell and expired, presumably from heart disease.

Little Child Badly Burned.

One day last week the two-year-old son of Mr. George Harrison, a farmer living near Allegree, Todd county, fell into the fire and was very badly burned about the head and face and the chances are that it will die.

Democratic Candidate Withdraws.

PANCOAST, Ky., Oct. 19.—Henry Rice, the Democratic candidate for representative from this county, has withdrawn, leaving the race between J. H. McConnell, Populist, and R. R. Morgan, Republican. It will now be a close race.

DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS.

Attended By Prominent Men of the State and District.

Pursuant to announcement previously made, Major Norman, Chairman of the Democratic State Campaign Committee, and Hon. Attila Cox, of Louisville, a member of the same committee, arrived in the city yesterday by special train to meet and consult with representatives from each of the several counties of the Second Congressional district as to the best plan of arousing more enthusiasm in the campaign from this time on to the election.

The following gentlemen were present: L. P. Tanner, McLean county; Dr. Pete Davis, Robt. Bradley, Jno. M. Victory, Hopkins county; Dr. R. Lee Agnew, Webster county; Ed. Kelley, Hancock county; Urey Woodson, James Bozarth, J. T. Griffith, John Lydiane, J. E. Rowe, Ida Robinson, Louis Bear, E. P. Millett, Daviess county; O. P. Dyer, D. H. Hughes, T. R. Culver, Union county; Charles M. Mescham, Christian county. The Central Committee and others of Henderson county.

The meeting was called to order in the Pythian building and Maj. Norman presided. Reports from the various counties were called for. Reports were made of a highly encouraging nature. It was shown that harmony now prevailed and that Hardin's majority would go largely over what it would have been a short time back. The battle cry is Hardin and victory and it is going to win. It was decided to make an aggressive campaign from this time on to election day.—Henderson Gleaner.

The Shoot on Thursday.

We only had space in Friday's paper to briefly give the result of the shooting match on the first day of the fair between the Hopkinsville and Henderson Gun Clubs. This feature proved to be one of the best attractions at the fair and the interest which it was expected to keep the interest keenly alive until the last gun was fired. The prize was a $50 gun and the local club had the satisfaction of winning it. The official score shows that some fine records were made. For the local club the best scores were made by Wilgus and Tibbs and Hopkins and Alves were the best shots among the visitors.

Following will be found the official score:

HENDERSON OFFICIAL SCORE.

Strachan Barrett, 14; Walter S. Alves, 17; W. A. Bradshaw, 14; B. B. Mayfield, 15; Gus Moore, 14; R. H. Powell, 15; R. C. Scooper, 13; S. H. Kimmell, 16; Jno. Bradshaw, 16; Ed. Hopkins, 19—total 149.

HOPKINSVILLE.

Jno. Y. Owsley, 19; Tom Carless, 14; S. C. Mercer, 15; Gus Moore, 14; W. Tibbs, 17; M. W. Williams, 15; Gordon Nelson, 15; W. A. Lowry, 15; Gabe Campbell, 16; W. A. Wilgus, 19—total 152.

At night sportsmen were given a banquet at Hotel Latham, at which about 60 covers were laid. There were quite a number of speeches and the festivities continued until a late hour. Referring to the entertainment, the Henderson Journal had this to say in Sunday's paper: "Before leaving this subject I want to state that no visitors were ever better treated than were the Hendersonians in Hopkinsville. Capt. Wilgus, of that city, H. W. Tibbs, S. C. Mercer and the rest were unremitting in their kind attentions. Special credit is due to Messrs. Wilgus and Tibbs. They are princes in the entertainment line, and should ever be the good fortune of the Henderson men to get them here again, nothing will be too good for them."

Burned to a Crisp.

A three-year-old daughter of Tom Whitfield, living on Mr. J. M. Cayce's farm, near the city, was burned to death last Saturday afternoon. The child's mother was washing in the yard by a wood fire and the child got too close and her dress caught. Before assistance could be rendered she was enveloped in flames and her body was literally roasted, presenting a frightful sight. Death came to her relief in a few moments.

Lucien Cayce Touches.

The light-fingered gentry who followed several fairs in this end of the state, showed up here Saturday and one loss of a valuable gold watch is reported. Mr. Lucien M. Cayce was the loser and his chain was cut. He felt a gentle tug while in a crowd but failed to discover the theft, though he missed his watch at once. It was a valuable lady's watch, belonging to his wife. If any other parties were robbed they have not reported their losses to the police.

Not Till January.

The promoters of the prohibition movement have decided not to have the election until the last Saturday in January, 1896. They found they did not have sufficient time to canvass for names by the last of December.

OBSERVATIONS.

THINGS BROUGHT TO VIEW SINCE THE LEAVES HAVE FALLEN.

Improvements upon On-The-Colleges as Feeder of the Town—A Little More Light Wanted By The O. V. Depot.

About the darkest place this side of "Darkest Africa" is the neighborhood of the O. V. passenger depot when the moon is not shining. Just why the Council has permitted this state of affairs for so long is hard to understand. The nearest light of any kind is the electric light at Ninth and Main, but the glare from that source tends to intensify the pitch darkness beyond. There used to be an oil lamp at the end of the platform, but even that has fallen into innocuous desuetude, and nothing but blackness that can be sliced with a knife remains on the platform side of the depot. Even the hackmen have to carry lanterns when they go to meet trains. But for the fact that the trains carry their own headlights, there would be imminent and constant danger of running over somebody every night. This state of affairs ought to be remedied. If it is the fault of the city let the Council drop an electric light where it will do the most good. If it is the fault of the railroad, let the officials be forced to do their duty. Strangers coming into the city have to grope their way in the darkness of night to the more than one instance people have tumbled off the edges of the platform and landed on the rough stones three feet below. Maybe after somebody breaks a leg or a neck it will occur to the railroad people that a little better accommodations are required here than at Gracey and Woodville. This happens to be the terminal point of the system and not a small way station. It is getting too cold for lightning bugs and something ought to be done.

Did you ever stop to think how much Hopkinsville is benefited by her educational institutions in a commercial way. It is, of course, undeniable that the public schools are constantly bringing people to town to educate their children, but the colleges are doing a work not to be overlooked from a business standpoint. There are now about 125 young men and young ladies from other places attending the two colleges and Major Ferrell's High School. Putting the school expenses of these pupils at $25 each, it amounts to the city $3,125 a year that finds its way into the channels of trade. But this is not all. These young people buy their clothing and other supplies here, and it is so to estimate that they spend many thousands of dollars in the course of a year. The teachers, as a rule, are from a distance, and they too contribute to the prosperity. Our schools are all good ones, and business men should never lose a chance to give them every encouragement. They are helping to make Hopkinsville a prosperous city.

There are indications that the young men of Hopkinsville will present a pretty clean docket when the Leap Year court convenes in about ten weeks from the present time. Most of those who have been on the ragged edge of matrimony for some time, are showing a disposition to hurry up matters and get themselves into the harness before the girls again take their turn at court. After one or two more couples are tied up this fall, there will be no very aggravated cases of courtship to be carried over to the docket of 1896. By-the-way, next year is the only leap year we will have until 1904. The year 1896 happens to be one that cannot be divided by 4 or 400 and consequently it will not be a leap year.

The McPherson homestead on 15th street is undergoing extensive repairs and will soon look like a new house. It is being overhauled and renovated and painted anew with a light color that will very much change the appearance of the house and its surroundings.

Mr. R. M. Conway, who has stirred up the real estate business in Hopkinsville with a series of auction sales, left Saturday for Bowling Green in the hope that this week he will return next Monday.

All over town the streets are now torn up by the workmen laying pipes for the waterworks. This is a work that causes some inconvenience, but we have heard of no one who is not glad to be thus reminded that we are at last to have a system of waterworks.

The First Ice.

The thermometer dropped to 23 degrees Saturday night and Sunday morning there was a thin skin of ice, the first of the season.

THE CITY TICKETS.

The Republicans Will Concentrate in Five Wards.

Saturday was the last day for making nominations or filing petitions and the contests for City Councilmen can now be summed up. The Republicans make no nominations in the Sixth ward and the Democrats make none in the Fifth. In all of the other wards there are two straight party tickets.

In the First ward R. H. Holland is the Democratic nominee and R. M. Anderson is his opponent. Mr. Anderson was put on by a petition circulated by prohibitionists, but Clerk Prowse says he has been authorized to put his name under the cabin and that he will run as the regular Republican candidate.

In the Second ward J. D. Ware is the Democratic candidate. F. L. Ellis is his Republican opponent. Councilman Forbes, who was also a candidate, withdrew after his petition had been filed, in the interest of party success.

In the Third ward the fight is between D. R. Perry, Democrat, and R. A. Peck, Republican.

In the Fourth between Geo. D. Dalton, Democrat, and John Dinneen, Republican.

In the Fifth Councilman A. H. Anderson, Republican, has no opposition, and in the Sixth Councilman E. M. Black, Democrat, is also accorded a walk-over.

In the Seventh W. A. P'Pool, the Democratic nominee, is opposed by W. D. Ennis, Republican.

The Councilmen to elect their nominees in every ward unless a considerable number of Democrats vote the Republican ticket.

SOME DISTRICT CANDIDATES.

In the Pembroke magisterial district, W. L. Parker, the Democratic nominee, is expected to fill a vacancy, but has no opposition.

In the Fruit Hill district Frank P. Martin is the only candidate for constable, to fill a vacancy.

R. V. Long is running without opposition for marshal of the town of Crofton. There are two tickets for trustees of Crofton, one Republican and one Democratic.

Pembroke and Fairview each have one ticket, there being no opposition in either case.

A Sensational Case.

SABREE, Ky., Oct. 18.—Mrs. Thomas Price, a bride of a week, attempted to commit suicide last night by taking morphine. Physicians worked with her till this morning, and finally relieved her stomach of the deadly poison.

It is said Mrs. Price, whose maiden name was Ashley, was madly in love with a young man residing in Earlville, who appears to have jilted her for another. Price, her husband, married her last week after much pleading for her hand. He had recently come into possession of considerable money and was eager to get married at once. Miss Ashley finally consented, after being satisfied that her old lover had deserted her. She was accompanied by young Price to Evansville, where they were married.

The joys of the honeymoon, however, did not soothe her, and, it is said, she became so homesick for her despoiled love, she desired to find relief in death.

Price left yesterday after having obtained his money and watch he had given her. It is said she discovered his new bride was weary of him already and loved another. Mrs. Price is still in a dangerous condition and her prospects are uncertain of her recovery.

Bob and Alf Coming.

The incomparable entertainment afforded in "Yankee Doodle and Dixie" by the Hons. Bob and Alf Taylor, of Tennessee, is an oasis in the desert of alleged amusing things on the road. It appears from the newspapers that it ranks high over ordinary comedy, to be laughed over in a moment and forgotten, and that it addresses itself to the intellectual powers and high culture. It is a delightful cause and thrills people who do not frequent theatres. Nashville audience of 4,000 that greeted their opening was said to have been an extraordinary intellectual presence, including ministers and professors and about 500 boarding college young ladies. The Constitution says the large audience in Atlanta made up of people who rarely attend theatres, and says of it, "It is not a lecture—it is not just like anything else under the sun." The Chattanooga Times says that even the peanut gallery was filled with society people, and the Knoxville papers declare the audience there to have been of the intellectual classes. The fact is, it delights all classes, and the papers are effusive in its praise. The famous brothers will appear at the Tabernacle in this city Oct. 31 for only one night, and it is an opportunity that will not be lost by those who admire great brilliancy and refined entertainment.

Autumn and Winter Gowns Will

Charming Fabrics Imported from France,

Things in Sleeves, Skirts, Jackets and Capses.

Special Chicago Letter.

There is one thing that will help to reconcile the woman of to-day to the fall and winter fashions, and that is the materials of which the costumes are made. These fabrics are beautiful in the extreme, and all the most fashionable ones show the bonnet effect.
Rough surfaced wools are seen on every side. One of the most novel effects among the latest importations is a wool stuff resembling Turkish towel.

EVENING DRESS WITH DRIPPING SLEEVE.

ing with slender smooth woven lines of silk or velvet running through it.
These goods are especially handsome in the new shade called damson striped with bright green and dull violet, or else in golden-brown wool
with the velvet lines in dark brown, showing a gleam of yellow in the weaving. Another novelty is the moiré woolsens, which, by the way, are only made in England. They are woven with a border along the selvege to be used as a waist garment, which is beautifully wrought in palm pattern, rich Persian effects and in velvet application. This material comes in all the newest shades and also in black.

In the latter the fancy for the old, yet still popular, black and white combination is prettily brought out in the border which has its dainty white ground lightly covered with a lace-like pattern done in black velvet applique.
The chevrons, whose popularity is perennial, are seen in a loose and somewhat careless weave than those we have been accustomed to see in former seasons. The colors most sought after in this material are Russian green, Mediterranean blue and plum color. Deeply colored plaids will be much in evidence as the season advances. Particularly is this true of the rich plaid velvets which are used for sleeves and collars on dark colored bodices.

The new crepons are the handsomest yet brought out. They can scarcely be classed with the wool goods, as their surface is entirely of silk thrown upon a background of wool, and for this reason they will be used for more dressy gowns than the all-wool and moiré fabrics.

Something entirely new are damask crepons, showing large sillon flowers mounted in black on a ground of light tan damson or deep-sea blue. This charming design is also seen on backgrounds of plum color, golden brown, dull red and Russian green, and being very much up to date, is really the correct thing to buy if one elects to wear crepons.

In all the dress goods shown at present
the bright rich colors of autumn

VESTING TOILETTE WITH JACKET.

predominate, but Parisian costumes say much black will be worn later on.
Its somberness will, however, be greatly relieved by many sparkles and much fine jet. Brussels net, completely covered with jet, will glitter and gleam on handsome black silk and satin gowns, but owing to its exceedingly high price will never become as all common.
Sleeves are always an interesting subject to women, and particularly at the present time when late imported models show the rather small, close-fitting sleeve to be the correct one to wear.
There are a goodly number of women, however, who will most emphatically refuse to submit to the change. They will, for a time at least, cling to the affair made entirely without stiffen-ing. All the fashionable sleeves drop well off the shoulder and many of them fit the arm closely for a few inches below the shoulder and then expand into a puff. This is the latest sleeve for evening wear, and is shown to good advantage in the picture.

The very latest skirt, known as the serpentine, is cut circular, hangs in graceful box pleat effect and measures anywhere from five to ten yards at the hem. There is not the least suggestion of stiffening used in the lining and compared to these worn in past seasons
the new skirt presents a rather limp appearance.

A tailor-made suit should receive our immediate attention, for it is the most popular gown at the present moment.
It is not the severely plain tailor-made gown of yester-year; but, on the contrary, is quite dressy, not to say elaborate, with broad revers and vest of contrasting cloth and trimmings of narrow fur, not to mention the rich braiding in gold and silver in which some tailors excel. Tweeds, cheviots and boucle cloths are used for these gowns, but not to the exclusion of the smooth materials.
The chic silk bodices have not escaped its allurements, for some of the very prettiest ones I have seen lately show a trimming of gold and silver gleaming "beach trimmings" of fine lace, the whole being most elegant and charming to a degree.

Jackets and capes vie with each other in popular favor, and yet each has its separate and distinct uses. When we speak of the coat costume, we always think of the stylish, well-fitting jacket, while the cape finds favor for "dress-up" occasions, as well as the more common everyday wear. In all the newer jackets I notice there is an effort to do away with the girdle back and in its place are substituted fan-like plaids folded very flat. The back is also cut short, falling only a few inches below
the waist and having but few seams, though it is close fitting. With one or two exceptions the fronts are all loose, being sometimes cut a trifle longer than the back. These jackets or small coats, as some tailors call them, strike the keynote, as it were, of the fashions to be worn throughout the season, and as they are so generally becoming, I see no reason why they should not go through several seasons, with perhaps a few modifications.

It is too early to speak with any degree of certainty of the styles of garments, especially jackets, for the coming winter. A very radical change in sleeves is predicted, but as yet nothing is positively known.
Capes this fall are cut very short and very full. This is particularly true of the velvet and silk plush capes, some having such full gores as to form a waves around the corsage. The edges of these capes are buttonhole and embroidered with jet and are invariably lined with dream-land or pale colored satin or silk. A very pretty model in a moiré silk had the first cape of black, the second white and the top one of black, all the edges being dis-tished by full ruffles of lace, while about the shoulders of the upper cape was a handsome jet gullion trimming.

THE LATEST THING IN CAPES.

Another late model is given in the picture. It is made of rich black mirlor velvet and lined throughout with pale yellow brocade satin. Each gore is outlined by broad bands of passementerie, while round the neck and lower edge is an exceedingly handsome trimming of ostrich feathers, which, trimmed in aught something in passing, is destined to play an important part this winter on gowns as well as outer garments.

In the matter of millinery for the coming winter there is nothing definite at the present moment. There are "feelers" being put forth in many directions, but nothing has been decided upon. The test of time, which means in this particular case a short delay, will solve the problem, and in selecting a winter hat it is better "to make haste slowly" than to buy in haste and repent at leisure.

THE FAMOUS ALERT.

A Historic Ship That Has Just Been Sold for the Metal in Her.

Beached upon the Beaport shoals,
near Quebec, lies the old steamship Alert, which in 1878-79 was moored near to the north pole than any other vessel has ever been, says the New York Sun.

She was the flagship of the Nares Arctic expedition and lay all winter at Floberg beach, 89 degrees 14 minutes north latitude. In 1888 she was presented by the British government to our government to take part in the Greely relief expedition, and after that successful enterprise she was returned with thanks to the British.

In 1888 she was loaned to the Canadian government to investigate the navigability of Hudson straits, and to bring back the party of explorers left upon its banks in 1884 by the Neptune.
On this trip the Alert was commanded by Capt. Gordon, and for three weeks was jammed in the ice. It was her last northern voyage.

The imperial authorities presented her to the Canadian government, and the latter, finding it was not to be seaworthy, after employing her for some time in the buoy and lighthouse service, sold her at auction several days ago.

She was bought for $4,000 by a shipbuilder of St. John for the sake of her old metal and other material.

Fecklessness of the Mocking Bird.

The most remarkable thing about a mocking bird is its way of laying out a range. In the autumn it goes south and establishes itself on a piece of ground that will yield berries and other food enough to last until the following spring. The tract is determined respecting boundaries with as much accuracy as a mining prospector would use in staking out a claim. Perhaps it may be only fifty yards square, and it may have a length and breadth of as much as one hundred yards. The space depends mainly upon the food supply in sight, but the mocking bird is a great glutton and wants ten times the quantity that would be necessary to keep him alive. Having laid out his range, the owner will defend it with his life, and to no other fruit-eating bird is allowed to enter it.

Watches Smuggled in Mills.

The French customs authorities on the Swiss frontier have detected a novel and ingenious swindling device. Watches were sent across the border, sealed in cans of condensed milk. It is estimated that twenty-two thousand watches, valued at two million francs, have entered France thus in the past six months.

A Cold Weather Cure.

A business man came down to his office on a winter morning when it was bitingly cold.

"Where's the cold?" he asked to one of the clerks. "Just shut that safe, my pleasure."

The clerk obeyed, with a puzzled look. Then, when he could restrain his curiosity no longer, he asked:

"Excuse me, sir, but why did you tell me to shut the safe?"

"Why?" replied the employer, with a sly chuckle. "Because there's a good many

THE CONTINUOUS SHOW.

It Has at Last Found Its Way to New York.

Gothamites Now Revel in a Form of Entertainment Which Has Become a Traffic Staple in Chicago and Other Cities.

A Special New York Letter.
One of Dickens' characters, who was in the show business, and lapsed, frequently had occasion to remark in justification of his profession of being a teller of lies, the public must be amused. There is a large vein of truth running through this remark. From the very earliest ages man, in the person of a woman, has had some form of amusement. All races and conditions of men crave amusement. In fact you can tell precisely what sort of men live in a country by studying their popular pastimes.

THE STAGE IRISHMAN.

times. Almost all the diversions of the ancient Romans were cruel. The Spanish races, even of the present day, delight in cock fighting and bullfights, and on those lines they wage war. The ancient Briton, who was a fighter of fighters, survives, so to speak, in boxing matches. The Germans, on the other hand, have no amusements that involve suffering to man or beast—but I am drifting away from the subject on which I desire to write.
The public must be amused. With the wealthy, finding agreeable methods to kill time has become a serious business. New fads are invented and ancient sports are revived. The humbler classes crave amusement also. With people who spend most of their time in holding the wolf off by the ears, recreation is indispensable. They cannot go to Europe on their pleasure yachts and spend the summer doing the continental cities and climbing the Alps, as that involves the expenditure of more money and time than are usually at the disposal of those who toil for a living. They can, however, afford to lose a quarter of a dollar and a few hours time every week, and to give them an opportunity to do so "the continuous performance" was invented. It is a success, and it has come to stay.

There are several theaters in New York that are given up entirely to the continuous performance, and they are crowded day and night. There are no reserved seats, and the audience is admitted and goes out at the time, while the ability of the artists is not always of the highest order. Taken as a whole, the performance is satisfactory. Vocal and instrumental music, acrobatic feats, dancing, recitations and juggling follow each other in quick succession, the best features being saved for the end of the entertainment.
There is considerable sameness about the continuous performance, and when you have seen one you have virtually seen them all. I attended one a few weeks ago. The curtain went up and disclosed a background of gorgeous tropical scenery. A long-haired musician agitated the keys of the piano, and two typical Irish comedians in knee breeches, with shillies, pranced upon the stage.

This was the most distasteful feature of the evening. The wit of the everyday street Irishman is fresh and delicious, like ripe peaches. The wit of the comic stage Irishman may be compared to dried peaches. There is a difference, and what a difference! The two Hibernians were made up so grotesquely that they looked more like baboons than human beings. They conversed.

THE STAGE TIGHT GIRL.

"O! was ope before the court yesterday, Molke."

"And what was yes charged wid?"

"Whiskey, begorra!"

This humorous sally, which has been in circulation probably for centuries, was received with vociferous applause. The curtain descends, and, after a brief delay, goes up again. The tropical landscape is still there, and a typical tough girl, in tattered garments, vigorously chewing gum, and protruding her chin, stalks across the stage. Ever since Alva Lewis made a hit of "the tough girl" in Harrigan's "O'Kelly and the Four Hundred," the New York stage has been infested with tough girls, until it has become monotonous. This one is precisely like half a dozen I have seen. She indulges in some promiscuous remarks, in which the exclamation "see!" is very numerous. Finally she sings "On the Bowery," of course, and with a flourish "See!" goes off to reappear as a skirt dancer, having discarded her shabby make-up. Once more she disappears, and, in response to an encore which has not been heard by anybody but herself, again capers on the stage. She has abandoned some more of her reindeer. Her entire appearance seems to say, "I know that I am abandoned, and am proud of it."

After waving her limbs about in the air, like those of a tree, she becomes utterly reckless and turning somersaults disappears through the wings. This sort of thing must take a great deal of training, but she had plenty of time to train. Her dancing days were not confined to the springtime of life.

The next attraction is a supposititious colored lecturer, so to speak. There is quite an army of negro delineators in New York, and two or three are real artists. This one was not of them. There was nothing but burnt cork, and not enough of that, on his hands—to indicate that he was representing a negro at all. He did not even use the negro dialect in his tedious rhapsody. It was a relief to see him no longer on the stage.

He was followed by Mr. Raymond Moore, who is not only a better singer of note—no pun intended—but also composes his own songs. He is responsible for "Sweet Marie," which he sang and delighted the audience. For an encore he gave "Dear Louise," something in the same line. It was a musical treat, and in some measure compensated for the suffering undergone in the effort to feel amused over his predecessors.

Although parodied and burlesqued scores of times, this song, like perspiration in the theaters Sunday nights, has a great run.
Then followed a couple of contortionists, who performed feats that were almost incomprehensible, taking it for granted that they actually had bones in their bodies. As somebody behind me remarked: "How easy it must be for them to trot their corners!"

BOUNCING THE COLORED ENTHUSIAST.

The contortionists were succeeded by two brothers, who they were probably brothers with different fathers and mothers. They played on a great variety of strange and peculiar musical instruments. All executions are more or less painful, but the execution of a solo on an exaggerated trombone was, I think, the most painful execution I ever witnessed, and I have reported half a dozen hangings. It was simply murder without any mitigating circumstances. If, as has been stated, music is a prophecy of the life to come, and this was really music, there is a pretty fair time in store for us hereafter. From the way he acted I inferred that the gifted child of genius, while he did not appear in tights, was drunk, nevertheless.

The next performer was a dog of remarkable intelligence. However, he had his trainer with him on the stage. Cards on which were the letters of the alphabet were so arranged that the dog could pick them out and bring them to his trainer.

"Will any gentleman suggest a word of three or four letters," asked the general manager of the intelligent animal. Somebody got up and said: "Rats."

"Thank you," replied the smiling manager, writing the word on a blackboard. "Now, Fido, how do you spell 'rats'?"

Fido walked slowly to the cardboard letters, picked out the letters in their proper succession and laid them at the feet of his business manager, whereat a howl of delight went up from the crowded house. How, it was done I cannot imagine.

The rest of the performance was very much on the same lines, but with superior artists.
There was one incident which was not down on the programme, but which struck me as being irresistibly funny. There was a very serious-looking colored gentleman in the audience, not far from me. A lady banjoist on the stage was singing a negro camp-meeting song with great fervor. The Afro-American in the audience, who was about the color of the inside of a box of blacking, became very much excited, and at last he jumped up and shouted: "Glory! Hallelujah!"

The audience roared, but an usher, in a sort of naval uniform, pounced upon the helpless African like a duck upon a June bug, grabbed him by the collar, and after bumping him on the wall a time or so, propelled him toward the exit with great violence. "Luff me go, or dischille's gwinter make trouble," expostulated the indignant African.

"Look out for your nose," said some one in the audience. A second naval officer reinforced No. 1, and the effusively-gentlemanly colored man was ignominiously hustled into the street.

With the rest of the audience, I enjoyed this more than anything on the stage, and next day I told a friend, an old New Yorker, all about it.

"Why," he said, with a superior smile, "that's done at every performance. It is done to make talk, just as you have told me about it. The darky is paid for sat."

I went next day, and sure enough the same scene was enacted, but the star performer was another negro, several shades lighter. ALEX. B. SWEET

EX-EMPRESS CARLOTTA.

Her Unhappy Life is Rapidly Drawing to a Close.

Court Gossip Has It That Her Death Will Be the Signal for a Lewdman in Which Royalty Will Be the Contesting Parties.

On the 15th of September all Mexicans celebrated the anniversary of their national declaration of independence (created 1810), who in the lonely castle of Bonchoute, near Brussels, the life of one who paid for the dream of a Latin empire by the loss of a husband and of her reason was slowly ebbing away.

Ex-Empress Carlotta is dying, and even her bitterest enemies—if the royal innuendo has not outlived the last of those who suffered by Maximilian's infamous black decree—will scarce begrudge the poor woman this final triumph of courtesy, one except the king of the Belgians.

And this statement the St. Louis Globe-Democrat explains as follows: Leopold II. is the eldest brother of the ex-empress, and as the head of the family appointed himself administrator of the enormous fortune left by her father, the first of his name and dynasty. Leopold the elder ended the newly-created kingdom in 1831 as a penniless Coburg prince, and died thirty-four years later, two hundred times a millionaire, leaving his riches to his two sons, Leopold II. and the count of Flanders, and his daughter, Princess Carlotta, who at the time had just fastened the imperial diadem of Mexico on her brow.

The empress was declared insane by the organs of the nation October 4, 1863. On June 19, 1867, the Latin empire on the American continent ended with the execution of Maximilian. The marriage of this singularly unfortunate couple had not been blessed with children; there was nothing and nobody to interfere with the continuance of Leopold's administration of the 50,000,000 francs estate left to the empress, which at first he had assumed only temporarily.

These 50,000,000 francs have now been for thirty long years in Leopold's hands—that is, in the keeping of a person who, by reason of his high station, is above the law, who therefore cannot do wrong in the sense criminal, but is nevertheless amenable to the civil courts, as was proved some little time ago when his majesty had intended to shabby real estate speculation "to round off one of his estates," and was forced to disgorge the land unjustly taken from a poor man for a song by way of royal expropriation. It is whispered in Brussels court circles that these legal measures were instigated by members of the Austrian imperial family, notably Archduke Carl Ludwig, who, like Emperor Francis Joseph, was a brother of the late unhappy Maximilian. It was the intention to make a test case of King Leopold's standing before the civil courts. That being established—in his majesty's disfavour—Austrians are now but waiting for Carlotta's demise to ask for an accounting and incidentally for their share of the inheritance.

This is the reason why Leopold II. shudders at the mere thought of his sister's execution, and he has endeavored to exist, for—and this is another painful rumour hawked about the palace corridors—the ex-empress' 50,000,000 francs have disappeared; her fortune has no longer tangible existence.

Very Youthful Love Affair.
Just think of it! A ten-year-old wooer and a ten-year-old "wooee" in a New York police court. The babe was charged by the little miss with forcing his attentions upon her, much to her annoyance. When the small prisoner was placed at the bar only the top of his head was visible. In the severest tones the magistrate asked: "What have you to say for yourself, young man?" In a steady voice, large for his years and stature, the devoted one replied: "I wun't doin' nothin' to the lady. I only asked her to have a waltz with me."

At this the pretty little prosecutrix smiled sarcastically and reiterated her charge. Then the cadi severely lectured the "young man" and told him to cease his wooing if he would retain his freedom. The woes of life apparently begin in the nursery nowadays.

Peach Stones Used as Fuel.
In California it has been found that peach stones, as well as the best coal and give out more heat in proportion to weight. The stones taken out of the fruit that is tinned or dried are collected and sold at the rate of 8¢ per ton.

Neckties Made of Aluminum.
Aluminum neckties are now being introduced. They are really made of the cosmopolitan metal, and frosted or otherwise ornamented in various shapes, imitating the ordinary silk or satin article.

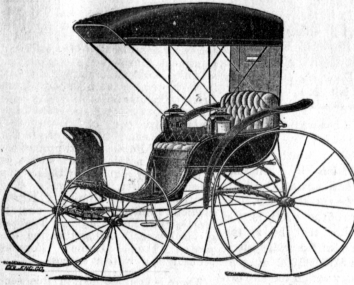

Length of Telegraph Wires.
According to a late estimate by an electric journal the world now has 3,200,000 miles of telegraph wire in use.

Now is the time to buy heating stoves. The Round Oak is still in the lead. It is the only air tight stove on the market. The genuine ROUND OAK found only at Forbes & Bro. It heats more on less fuel than any stove made and will out last a half dozen of the cheap imitations.

Majestic Range.

We sold more majestic ranges last year than were ever sold before in the same time, and the reason they sell is because they are the best and most economical baker's made. The oven is the most important part of a cooking apparatus, the fire box is the digestive organ and the draft is the circulation. These organs in the Majestic are different from any stove or range made. The Majestic oven is the most sensitive, the fire box the most economical and the draft the simplest and most perfect.

There are consoling features about the defection of the Louisville gold bugs. The vote for Hardin will fix the representation for the next State Convention and the gold advocates who scratch Hardin will not be on hand to give further trouble next year when the real fight comes on. If the Louisville vote drops from 18,000 to 10,000 it simply means that Louisville will have 50 instead of 90 votes in future conventions. Just to that extent will this hole of corruption be deprived of power to injure the Democratic party and sell out its long established principles. Let the bolters do their worst, and still the Democratic ticket will win. The country is aroused and the Democrats of Kentucky will do their duty like men. The country will increase its vote beyond all precedents and it would not surprise us to see Hardin lead the ticket. He will do it in this county and unless we are very much mistaken Christian county will have at least 15 votes in future conventions, instead of 12 as at present.

The Grand Rivers Herald submits this as its guess on the judicial race: "To make an estimate of the probable vote in the third district we may say that Judge Linn would get a majority of 1150 in Callaway, Lyon 275, and Trigg by 225. In the district of 1850. Breathitt would get a majority of 1000 in Christian, ending Linn a net majority of 200 votes. It is not probable that there will be a full vote, and the chances are more in Judge Breathitt's favor on this account. Democracy is quiet and Republicanism is rampant in the district. It looks, however, as if changes from the above votes are made they will be favorable to Judge Linn and unfavorable to Breathitt. These figures are far from a correct estimate. Lyon is probably about right, but Trigg will give at least 400, while Breathitt will have to run 500 votes ahead of his ticket to get 1,200 in Christian county. Breathitt will not go to Callaway with more than 600 majority, which ought to be easily overcome.

The Louisville Democrats opened the city campaign at a big rally at Phoenix Hill last Sunday night. Col. Beckridge was the principal speaker and he made an eloquent plea for the whole ticket. That the Democrats are getting into better shape in Louisville is shown by the fact that the Republicans have lowered their claims from 10,000 to 3,500 in the city, and many Democrats even hope to carry the city for Hardin.

They now say that Gen. Cimpus is crazy. To those who have heard reports he has sent out from the Cuban revolution, this news will not be a surprise. He has either been or is all along or has been so foolish as to presume upon the lack of intelligence of the reading public.

Every bottle guaranteed. Sold by all druggists.

As foretold in our last issue, the Republicans have taken advantage of the prohibition excitement to nominate a mixed ticket, adjusted to suit the supposed opposition to the Democratic nominees. In the first and seventh wards, where the Democratic nominees did not vote themselves as prohibitionists, they have nominated ultra prohibitionists, and in the third and fourth wards where the Democratic nominees are prohibitionists, they have selected men understood to be on the opposite side of the question. They think they see an opportunity to profit by the stupidity of Democrats and capture a majority of the councilmen. We believe when the Democrats see into this scheme they will go a little slow in their efforts to mix up politics with prohibition. Those who were deluded into signing the petition of a Republican nominee, will probably keep both of their eyes open in the future.

The Duke of Marlborough, who has come to this country to trade his title for Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt's millions, seems to be a high roller and red painter. While in Louisville last week, according to the Star, he took in a limo show at the "Buck," and had to be ejected from the wings, where he had gone in an attempt to make the acquaintance of one of the dancing girls. After being put out like any ordinary youngster, he got in a hack and made a trip to the red-light district. Now comes the news that he has been arrested in New York for violating a park ordinance, by riding with his feet on the handles of his bicycle. If Miss Vanderbilt doesn't make haste and marry her Duke, she may have to bail him out of jail.

John Sherman has written a book giving a history of his "Forty Years in Public Life" in which he has created a sensation by bringing charges of bad faith against Garfield, Harrison and other notable men. The principal feature of the book is the claim of the author that he is the father of our present financial system, that has driven $173,000,000 of gold out of the country within the last two years. He is welcome to all the credit he can get out of the "Crime of '73."

The Mason-Ford Company have filed suit at Frankfort against W. M. Finley and other publishers of the Louisville Truth for $50,000 damages, for the publication of an article charging that the Mason-Ford Company paid "a state official" $9,644.29 as his share of the company's dividend in 1892. This is the same libel for which Auditor Norman has brought suit against the Louisville Commercial and for which the latter paper has been indicted.

This item from Louisville shows which way the gamblers are betting on the coming race: "A Republican from Indianapolis left $25 at the Fifth Avenue Hotel office to be placed on Bradley being the next Governor. A half-dozen Democrats wanted it last night. The first one to get there covered it, and wants two or three thousand more in the same way. There is no end to the money which sees Hardin will be elected."

The Republicans evidently think Hopkinsville affords a fine field for state house of business Gen. W. Lyon, their candidate for treasurer, will speak to-day and next week two of their biggest guns will be fired. On the 28th, Chas. Finley, candidate for secretary of state, holds forth and on the 29th Judge W. H. Holt will make a speech. In spite of all this commotion, just watch Hopkinsville go Democratic.

Campbell is making a great race for governor of Ohio and many will posted politicians claim that he will be a sure winner.

Attention, Members. The Gun Club will meet at Dr. M. W. Williams' office at 7 p. m. to-day. Business of importance and a full attendance is desired. W. A. WILCOX, Captain.

The Cotton States and International Exposition at Atlanta, which takes rank among the most brilliant fairs ever organized on the American Continent, comes in for conspicuous attention, both pictorial and literary in the November number of Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly. The leading article on this subject is from the authoritative pen of Walter G. Cooper, the energetic chief of the Department of Publicity and promotion. Among the notable short stories is "The Railway Signal," by the famous Russian writer, Garshin. The frontispiece is an admirable reproduction in water colors of a characteristic scene in New England, "The Thanksgiving Dinner." Altogether, the improved Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly is a brilliant success.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally, and reaches from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. Queer Friendships Between Them and the Marsh Wrens.

Why a Colony of Birds is Rapidly Increasing in Number in the Salt Meadows at the Mouth of the Horseman's River.

On the broad, brown salt meadows that skirt the Horseman's river just above its mouth is a vast colony of marsh wrens. In the acres of tangled tules and cat tails they have built nests innumerable, pretty woven affairs of reed and cat-tail stems. The nests, which are as large as one's head, are so compactly constructed and so thoroughly thatched as to be entirely weather-tight. As a rule, the thrifty little chattering wrens prefer not to occupy a last-year's nest, so there are every season hundreds of empty ones. They are not allowed to remain vacant long, however, for there are too many creatures seeking just such snug abodes. On a meadow take possession of a great many of them, and the old mice can be seen at all times of the day nimbly running up and down the reeds, coming to and going from their cozy homes. Like most squatters, they are not the most desirable settlers, and, sad to say, frequently repay their open-hearted landlords by eating all the pink eggs in the nest, or, if caught in the act, sneaking and asked him to organize a vigilance committee, trail the thief to his home and drive him and his family from the nest, tearing it to pieces to prevent any return.

The most desirable tenants of all are the big black and white hornets. By far the greater number of the old nests are inhabited by these fiery fellows, and, odd to relate, they are the best of friends with the landlords. As if by agreement with the wrens, they keep a perpetual guard over the new nests, as well as those where they live. Let a dog, a mischievous cat or snipe shooter, a bird-crying boy, or any creature whatever approach the nest within a few yards, and, suddenly, without warning, a cohort of winged warriors will fall on the intruder, and flight is the only recourse. To fight would mean death, for the hornets would soon be reinforced by

WORTHY YOUR CONFIDENCE.

The success of Hood's Sarsaparilla in conquering scrofula in whatever way it may manifest itself is vouched for by thousands who were severely afflicted by this prevalent disease, but who now rejoice over a permanent cure by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Scrofula may appear as a humor, or it may attack the glands of the neck, or break out in dreadful running sores on the body or limbs. Attacking the system in any way, it may develop into catarrh or lodging in the lungs lead to consumption. Come as it may, a faithful course of treatment with Hood's Sarsaparilla will overcome it, for working upon the foundation of all diseases, impure blood, the system is clarified and vitalized, and vigor, strength and health restored to the body.

other pestilens until they would cover the victim and sting him to death. The wrens seem fully conscious of the value of such sentinels, for they take care to build their new nests always very near to the old. The birds are themselves entirely defenseless, and their nests being easily located on account of size and the noise made by the wrens, they have in some localities been entirely wiped out by egg-collectors. The boys have learned to give this colony a wide berth, however, and the Horseman's marsh wrens are fast increasing in numbers, and, unless the hornets shift their quarters, are likely to sing happily there in the reeds and raise many a brood of young in years to come.—N. Y. World.

A New Man.

We have been quite oppressed by men who would cut off the floating tresses of young girls; we also have suffered from a mania who could not resist squinting ink on the corners of passing women, and last year a man with a sharp pair of scissors used to slash pieces out of anyone's coat or skirt that came within his radius. This last person was sent to a madhouse, whence he ought not to have been released, but, being pronounced cured, he was launched upon an unsuspecting community again, and profited by his liberty to use his scissors once more. He accosted a lad in a deserted street, and asked him to write down an address, and profited by his occupation to neatly slice off the lobes of both the poor boy's ears, and then ran away. This interesting lunatic, whose name is Maire, will now go to permanent confinement; but the youth's ears are permanently disfigured, to his great anguish of mind.

Italy's Grand Old Man.

Francesco Crispi, who is now in his seventy-fifth year, even in looks is anything but an old man. Energetic, restless by temperament, he leads a wonderfully active life, seldom leaving the Italian capital, even when the heat of the Roman summer drives him one day to the sea-side, or the mountains. Crispi works all the time, sleeps little, eats less, and does not drink or smoke. Instead of indulging in copious libations of beer, like Prince Bismarck, or even of his native wine, Crispi drinks nothing stronger than milk, of which he consumes about three litres a day.

The November Forum.

The leading article in the November number of the Forum will be a discussion of the third-term question by Professor John Bach McMaster, the historian entitled "The Third-term Tradition." Mr. McMaster cites the well-known historical precedents against a third term, and thinks there is no reason to believe that the old time antipathy to a third term is one whit less stronger than it ever was. Mr. McMaster says that while our practice of choosing Presidents is not because of their fitness, but because of their availability, is in theory all wrong, in practice no harm comes from it; for, under our form of government we do not need a President of extraordinary ability the average man is good enough, and for him two terms is ample. What we want, in Mr. McMaster's opinion, is a strong government of the people by the people, not a government of the people by a strong man, and we ought not to tolerate anything which has even the semblance of hereditary. Mr. McMaster counsels the advocates of a third term for Mr. Cleveland to remember that the illustrious founder of their party that "in no office can rotation be more expedient."

Paducah lost one of its best citizens by the death of R. C. Ballard. He was in every way an honorable man, kind, true and just. A life-long friend of the public schools, his thought and care in that direction will be missed. His was a modest yet useful life and his family does not mourn alone over his death.

The new U. S. gunboat "Nashville" was successfully launched at Newport News, Va., Saturday. Miss Guild and her father, Ex-Mayor George B. Guild, of Nashville, having been called home by death in the family, Miss Emma Thompson christened the boat and Congressman Washington, of Tennessee, represented Mr. Guild in the ceremonies.

Miss Nettie Easley, a well-known young woman who lived in the family of A. B. Swearingen at New Washington, committed suicide by hanging Wednesday night about 9 o'clock. In a note on a slate belonging to one of the children of Mrs. Swearingen the young woman said the deed was done because her love for Albert Seigel, who worked on a neighboring farm, was not returned. The young woman was about twenty years old. She had been in the family of Mr. Swearingen for twelve years. She seldom went into society, preferring to stay by herself and seemed to have a particular aversion for men.

The young man mentioned in the note is in the employ of Robert Mills, about six miles out from Mt. Washington. He was an intimate friend of the Swearingen family, but so far as is known never paid his attentions to the girl.

CUBAN REVOLUTION.

Rev. J. O. Rust Discussed This Subject in a Sermon.

Rev. J. O. Rust, pastor of the Edgefield Baptist Church preached last night on the subject of the Cuban Revolution. He took his text on the story of the Good Samaritan as told in Luke x: 30-36.

The speaker first gave a description of the island, its topography, and beauty and of its natural conditions, its resources, its climate and other gifts of divine donation, and said with all this abundance of richness and located as it is in the heart of this advancing western civilization Cuba should be in a most prosperous condition. He said this was not true, however, as in fact the island was bankrupt and poor, beaten and pillaged by her oppressor. He spoke of the lack of progress and the undevelopment of the country, which was apparent on every hand. He spoke of how the island had been oppressed by Spain and said it was no wonder the women were sad, the men gloomy and the children morose. He said Spain, the oppressor of Cuba, was always the friend of royalty and ecclesiasticism. Spain has a population of 18,000,000 and 10,000,000 of them can neither read nor write. Roman Catholicism is the state religion, and Protestants are permitted to worship only in private. He said no wonder such a nation has lost all her American possessions save Cuba and that it was no wonder she was recognizing by Congress the Cubans as belligerents at its next session. He declared all the conditions existed for such a declaration according to the rules of international law. He then explained those rulings in detail.—Nashville Banner.

The Fair Was a Success.

The fifth annual meeting of the fair, three days of last week, proved to be the most successful ever held. The crowds were larger, the exhibits fuller and the attractions better than any previous year. In spite of the lateness of the date, and the inclemency of the weather on the last day. While the crowds were good, they were not up to the oldtime outpourings and reunions that we used to see. In a recent number of the Farmers Home Journal Dr. C. H. Todd had an article on this subject, from which we take the extract: "I wish to say that the decadence of the 'ideal county fair' in Kentucky commenced some years ago when the amphitheatre enclosing a large circle for the exhibition of ring horses and cattle was abandoned for the grand stand and its track. Pardon me for citing an instance illustrative of this fact by reference to the history of the Lexington fair. I well remember the year the Lexington fair abandoned the amphitheatre for the grand stand a conversation I had with one of Fayette county's most esteemed and honored citizens—whose heart was in the success of the county fair—who he said: 'This change will mark the decadence of Kentucky's great fair.' An 'ideal county fair' requires some fifty acres of land, an amphitheatre enclosing a circle for the exhibition of ring horses and cattle, a floral and agricultural hall, a grand stand and a half mile track, sandy grove, fine music, side show of all kinds, small admittance, all vehicles and horses free, no gambling and everything done for the comfort and pleasure of the crowd."

"The future for 'the ideal county fair' in Kentucky was never brighter. The time has come when the horse breeders of Kentucky will no longer go after false gods, but they will realize the fact that it is to their interest to enter their horses in every ring at all of the ideal county fairs in their vicinity."

Dr. Todd will be borne out by every one who can call to mind the glorious days prior to the war when the fair was looked forward to year after year with emotions of the greatest pleasure by the people of this and neighboring counties. These were happy days that people love to call to mind. We then had a splendid amphitheatre and magnificent rings of show horses, trotting and saddle horses throughout the day.

The fair company became discouraged and the old amphitheatre was torn down and the grounds were platted and sold into town lots not long ago. If our fair directors would replace the amphitheatre with another one and return to the old-fashioned fair, with its big pumpkins, its baby shows and its all day program and dinners on the ground, and hold it early in September, we would probably see more of the old-time crowds and county reunions.

TOBACCO NEWS.

HOPKINSVILLE MARKET.

Receipts smallest for the season, sales very light, and no change in prices from last week; quality very poor were the leading features of the week. The 1896 crops all cured up a very good color, and need rain, and had to make colors run. Some of the farmers think the tobacco will not weigh out so well as the 1894 crop did. But the 1895 crop has more spread of leaf and length than the 1894 crop with the worm cut in it, which will make good snuff tobacco, of the kind all the market has been very bare of for several years. I think the damage from worm cut and frost will not have any effect on prices on this market. However it is the unexpected that happens in the tobacco trade.

Mixed Relationships in Indiana.

There has been another marriage between the Rays and Lucases at Deputy, Jefferson county, Ind., and thereby the relationship in these much-related families are even more tangled. Marion Lucas and Lillian Ray have been married. Ray's brother-in-law thereby becomes his son-in-law. Ray is both his new son-in-law's brother-in-law and father-in-law. Mrs. Lucas becomes her father's sister-in-law, and her children will be both niece and nephew and grandchildren to her father. Pursuing the relationship along a different line, Addison B. Ray, being father to Mr. and Mrs. Lucas, and also to their brothers and sisters, and being by law a brother to them, becomes his own father.

THE HEART OF A KING.

French Royalists Venerate This Relic of Louis XVII.

Publicity has been given to a singular ceremony which took place recently at Neuilly-sur-Seine, in the course of which a reliquary was handed to Count Urbain de Maille, representing the Duke of Madrid, by M. Edouard Drumont, in the presence of a group of legitimist nobles and a notary. This reliquary, says the London Telegraph, consisted of a crystal orfroid vase, opening in the middle and surmounted by a fleur-de-lis in copper gilt. It was suspended a dried human heart, and at the bottom of the vessel were some pieces of broken crystal. The heart, if certain documents and traditions are to be accepted, was that of Louis XVII., and the proceedings opened with the reading of an autograph letter from Don Carlos, in which the writer thanked Mr. Drumont for the homage which he had paid to this precious relic of the royal martyr, which he, the prince, accepted in order that it might be deposited in the chapel of the castle of Frohsdorf.

As in such a matter everything depends upon the genuineness of the relic, the solemn declaration of the donor was regarded as a pious proof of its royal origin. He affirmed, raising his hand as Frenchmen do in a court of law, that the heart was certainly the one which he had inherited from his mother, and that it came into her possession from the hands of M. Gabriel Pelletan, who in his turn had treasured it for fifty-three years, he having rediscovered it at the archbishopric and recognized it as the one which his father had entrusted to Mgr. de Quelan.

IT. Russian had, it appeared from documentary evidence, made so bold as to abstract the heart of the young king when he conducted a post-mortem examination of his body upon his death in the Tour de Temple, by order of the comite de surete generale. The doctor preserved the heart as an object of adoration and veneration, and on the return of the Bourbons endeavored to restore it to royal keeping. Circumstances, however, were against him; but immediately before his death, in 1828, he supplanted by letter Mgr. de Quelan, then archbishop of Paris, to receive the treasure, in order that it might be handed to the royal family.

Then came the revolution of 1830, and with it the sack of the palace. The vase was broken in the courtyard by one Lescaud, who was ignorant of its value, and he carried away merely the papers which were found with the vessel; but, subsequently, by his aid, M. Gabriel Pelletan recovered the fragments of the shattered vase, which still bore the number seventeen and the name mentioned in the receipt which had been given by the archbishop. Further search revealed in a heap of sand the royal heart, which retained the odor of the spirits of wine in which it had been for so long preserved.

BRADLEY AN A. P. A.

Startling Information About the Republican Candidate.

The Elizabethtown News is responsible for the following:

While in Louisville last week we heard a very interesting story of how Billy Bradley, in search of votes, became a member of the secret political organization known as the A. P. A. The story comes from a member of that order and bears every semblance of truth upon its face, and the informant says Bradley will not deny it. He says that a certain lodge of the A. P. A. in Louisville decided by a vote to support Pettit for Governor, and as soon as this was done a certain well known hotel man who is Republican and an A. P. A., sent a man to Tompkinsville with word to Bradley to come to the city quick on important business; that Bradley canceled his appointment to speak at Tompkinsville and came to the city. This hotel friend took Bradley to a conference with some of the leading A. P. A.'s in the city, and that he (Bradley) remonstrated with them for throwing their votes away on Pettit and urged them to support him. One of the conferees said: "Mr. Bradley what assurance have we that if we support you and you are elected Governor, that you will not appoint Catholics to office?" Bradley promised that he would not do this, but this did not satisfy them and finally he said, as an evidence of good faith he was willing to join the order, and that night he took the oath and was regularly initiated. Our informant says that Bradley will not deny that he is an A. P. A.

KILLED A PANTHER.

A Three-Hundred-Pound Animal Shot in Pennsylvania.

Charles H. Watson, a young telegrapher at Clarence, near Bellefonte, Pa., on the Beech Creek railway, one of the wildest spots in the Alleghenies, went squirrel hunting recently. Going into a thicket a mile back from the station, he saw the biggest panther he ever heard of preparing to spring on Watson's dog, when the young hunter came in view. He had seen bears and other wild animals, but this was his first introduction to a "panther." He did not lose his nerve, and while keeping his eye on the animal charged the charge in his gun. Withdrawing the cartridge he had ready for squirrels, he put in a charge of buckshot. The panther was eyeing him and waiting for a chance to spring. As he raised his gun and fired the beast jumped. One of the shot entered the animal's right eye, and penetrated the brain. Watson had to get assistance to remove the carcass. It measured thirteen feet from tip to tip, and weighed nearly three hundred pounds. It was the first and only panther killed here in twenty years. Farmers near the mountains have been losing stock for three years. It is supposed that the panther was the cause of it.—Globe Democrat.

WHAT A PROMINENT INSURANCE MAN SAYS.

H. M. Blossom, senior member of H. M. Blossom & Co., 217 N. 3d St., St. Louis, writes: I had been left with a very distressing cold, the result of influenza, which nothing seemed to relieve, until I took Ballard's Horchound Syrup. One bottle completely cured me. I sent one bottle to my sister, who had a severe cough, and she experienced immediate relief. I always recommend this syrup to my friends.

John Cravston, 908 Hampshire St., Quincy, Ill., writes: I have found Ballard's Horchound Syrup superior to any other cough medicine I have ever known.

GEN. WILLIAM MAHONE.

He Was One of the Unique Characters of His Time.

His Famous Encounter with Senator Hill, the Great Leader of Southern Democracy—A Scene Without a Precedent.

There died, on October 8, one of the most picturesque characters, if not one of the most remarkable men, of the time. Gen. William Mahone has never been a popular man in the sense in which we mean the word generally used, but he has had a fair share of that admiration that always goes out to courageous, aggressive and impulsive men. Gen. Mahone, says the Chicago Inter Ocean, won his first reputation as a trusted lieutenant of Gen. Lee. He was a dashing but self-contained army officer and was devotedly attached to the cause of his state and to his commander.

His first appearance in the field of national politics was after the quarrel in the democratic party in Virginia in 1880 as to the readjustment of the debt. Mr. Mahone was elected United States senator and took his seat in March, 1881. At that time the organization of the senate hung in the balance. The republicans wanted a majority of members enough to organize the senate, but elections had not been held, and their policy was to delay the organization until the new senators were in their seats. The policy of the democrats was to force immediate organization. There were rumors and something more as to the position Mr. Mahone would ultimately take. It was stated that in the organization he would not act with the democrats, and it was certain that he did not attend the democratic caucus. The policy of the democratic leaders was to smoke him out and make him declare his purpose.

Senator Hill, of Georgia, then in his prime, as representative of the extreme southernism of the democratic party, undertook the task of driving Mr. Mahone from his position between the two parties into the democratic ranks. On the 14th of March, 1881, in a speech rasping and exasperating in innuendo and offensive insinuations, all directed at Mahone, Senator Hill precipitated one of the most extraordinary scenes ever witnessed in the United States senate. It was against the traditions of the senate for a new member to speak. Mr. Hill seemed to regard this tradition as a rule that would prevent Mr. Mahone from resenting his extremely offensive speech. The senate generally seemed to take the same view of the situation, but very much to the surprise of all, as soon as Senator Hill had taken his seat Senator Mahone slipped quietly to the front of the desk and proceeded to reply to Mr. Hill. For a minute he spoke quietly and in a self-contained way, then, springing forward half across the space between himself and the Georgia senator, he addressed Hill personally with great vehemence of manner, taunting him with playing the part of a custodian of the democratic party. He announced that he was the custodian of his own democracy and as proud of his record and as responsible for his conduct as the democratic party.

The scene was without precedent in the senate. The nearest approach to it was the celebrated encounter between Zach Chandler and Jefferson Davis. The Mahone episode was unlike any other case. The senator from Virginia made no pretense of senatorial dignity or reserve, but spoke in a vehement and impassioned manner. At the close of his speech the republican senators gathered about him and congratulated him, and later in the day when Senator Hill attempted to reply, Mahone again broke over the senatorial rule by asking Hill directly certain questions concerning the extraction of the scene ended in Mahone's voting with the republicans, and it was conceded that Mr. Hill's tactics had been a mistake, as they broke Mahone's record into an open exposure of the republican cause.

After that there were many declamations and the state of Hill declined, while that of Mahone went up. The latter went into the political arena with the spring of a lion and he kept up the fight, not only with the democratic party, but with the faction of the republican party opposed to him, with a sort of feline ferocity. It is useless to analyze such a character. Mr. Mahone from the first was congenitally eccentric. He was fastidiously eccentric in the matter of dress and was completely so in nearly all of his political controversies. On the floor of the senate he was a man of words and pictures, and a man of great power. He carried the theory of a cavalry officer. He cared nothing for the people in his way, little for those who might be angry, but he was absorbed in carrying his own point first, last, and all the time. His appearance in national politics marked a new era in the south, and he was absorbed in carrying his own point first, last, and all the time. His appearance in national politics marked a new era in the south, and he was absorbed in carrying his own point first, last, and all the time.

A Miracle in Texas.

INVESTIGATED BY THE TEXAS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE AND VOUCHERED FOR BY DR. C. H. STANSBURY.

(From the Texas Christian Advocate.)

Our representative has made a careful investigation of the late building case at Longview, which is here published for the first time, which will be read with great interest by medical men everywhere. In reply to the Christian Advocate's question: "About eight years ago while running a locomotive I contracted rheumatism in my left side from my hip down. It came on very fast and in a few months I lost control entirely of that side. It was just the same as if it was paralyzed. I was totally unable to move out of my room for a year and a half, six months of which time I was bed-ridden. I tried every remedy suggested, and had regular physicians in constant attendance on me. I was bled up and sent to Hot Springs where I spent three months under the treatment of the most eminent specialists, all of which did me no good, and I came back from the springs in a worse condition than when I left. I came home and laid flat on my back and suffered the most excruciating agonies, screaming in pain every time anybody walked across the room, the only ease I obtained being from the constant use of my leg. After three months of this kind of agony, during which time my entire left leg perished away to the very tip, my attention was called to a new remedy called Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, by a friend. I bought a new train dispatcher at Texas, and was relieved of locomotor ataxia of the right arm. At his urgent and repeated solicitation I consented to give them a trial, after taking a few doses I began to improve. I continued taking the pills and kept right on improving until I was able to get up. I am now as well as size now as the other one, and I am sure that Pink Pills not only cured me but saved my life.

The reporter next visited Dr. C. H. Stansbury, a graduate of one of the medical schools of Kentucky, and a man who enjoys the confidence of everybody in Longview. He said: "I know of no leg that was so terribly severe a case of ataxia rheumatica of which I tried to cure him; used every thing known to my profession in vain, and finally recommended him to go to Hot Springs. When there when he went and I thought it was only a matter of time until his heart would give out. He would die, I am sure. I know that his cure is the direct result of the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

That is rather an unusual statement for a regular physician to make, doctor."

There are hundreds of people right here in Longview who know what I say is the result of the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I also know of a number of cases who were relieved of a genuine and severe case of locomotor ataxia of twenty years standing.

Too Easy.
 New Boarder—What do we get for dinner to-night?
 Old Boarder—This is the night we usually have chicken.
 New Boarder—That's not half bad.
 Do we often get chicken?
 Old Boarder—Oh, about three times a week.

New Boarder—Well, by Jove! that's pretty fine but I don't see how Mrs. Skidmore can afford that.
 Old Boarder—Oh, it's the same chicken—Brooklyn Style.

The Better Way.
 Miss Cogryll—Jack Softleigh told me last night that I ought to accept him because he was willing to prove his love for me.
 Her Friend—What did you say?
 Miss Cogryll—I said I couldn't see it in that light.

Her Friend—Then what did he say?
 Miss Cogryll—Nothing. He just turned the light out.—Philadelphia Record.

Nearly every family in the United States keeps a bottle of whiskey in the house. This applies as well to Iowa, Kansas and Vermont as to States where its sale is not prohibited.

Some keep it as a beverage, some as a tonic, some as a medicine. In either case it is important that it should be old and pure.

J. W. Harper's Nelson County, Ky., Whiskey has been examined by the leading chemists throughout the country and its purity has in every case been highly recommended.
